OSS NEWS

For regular and associate members, it is time to renew your membership in the Oregon Stamp Society. Please update any information that has changed this year so we can update our records. For your convenience, a form for your renewal and a pre-addressed envelope are enclosed. Your membership in OSS includes a membership in the Northwest Philatelic Library. You may also make a donation to either or both OSS and NPL. A separate donation to NPL is tax deductible, since it is a 501(c)(3) Corporation organized for charitable purposes (the usual caveat about checking with your tax return preparer applies).

Mail early and avoid the postal rate increase.

Renewal of your membership by January 1st 2014
would be greatly appreciated

President's Corner

With this issue of the Album Page, Regular and Associate members will receive a membership renewal form and a pre-addressed envelope for the mailing of your dues payment. You may renew for two years at the same rate as for 2014. You may also make an additional donation to OSS and/or NPL. Payment of your annual dues would be greatly appreciated by January 1st.

With our annual fund raising auction coming up in March of 2014, we will continue to take consignments into mid January. We plan to mail auction catalogs in late February to everyone who bid in either of the last two auctions. If you did not bid in either of the last two auctions, but would like to receive a catalog, just contact me before February and one will be mailed to you.

Cover of The Month

USPS Postal News Release No. 013-079 dated October 2 2013:
"Postal Service Announces Very Limited Edition Stamps Circulated with Recent Issue of Famous 'Upside Down' Jenny Stamp."

Customers who purchased Inverted Jenny stamps could have one of only 100 stamp sheets printed with plane flying 'right side up'.

WASHINGTON — The Postal Service announced today that it printed 100 additional sheets of stamps of the recently issued Inverted Jenny stamp but with the plane flying right-side up. These very limited edition stamps were circulated with the recent issue of the most famous "misprinted" stamp. Customers who have recently purchased the new Inverted Jenny stamp could have a very limited edition of the famous stamp.

Unique to this stamp issuance, all sheets were individually wrapped in a sealed envelope to recreate the excitement of finding an Inverted Jenny when opening the envelope and to avoid the possibility of discovering a corrected Jenny prior to purchase.

'We are leveraging the incredible story behind the rare collectible as a creative way to generate interest in stamp collecting while highlighting the role the Post Office Department had in developing the commercial aviation industry,' said Postmaster General Patrick Donahoe.

Individuals purchasing 'corrected Jenny sheets' will find a congratulatory note inside the wrapping asking them to call a phone number to receive a certificate of acknowledgement signed by the Postmaster General.

The Backstory on Creating the Misprint's 'Misprint'

The idea for creating the "misprinted misprint," came to light after the Postmaster General mentioned the stamp to customer groups shortly after it was previewed in January.

'Our customers were enthusiastic about printing a new version of the most publicized stamp error in U.S. history as a great way to spur interest in stamp collecting,' said Donahoe. 'Some jokingly commented that we should be careful to avoid repeating the same mistake of nearly a century ago. That was the impetus behind this initiative. What better way to interest a younger generation in stamp collecting? "

by Sheryll Ruecker

PIPEX 2014 Exhibit Checklist

You're getting yourself organized. Showing your exhibit at PIPEX 2014 is going to be a reality. So here's the checklist:

- You've downloaded the Manual of Philatelic Judging and had a quick squizz through it, highlighting sections to come back to later.
- You've printed off the UEEF (Uniform Exhibit Evaluation Form).
- You've already prepared a draft title page, and possibly set to work on writing up the rest of your exhibit.
- You've filled in the PIPEX 2014 exhibit entry form to be sent to the Exhibits Chair George Struble in Salem, and written out a modest check for frame fees.
- You have even printed off a copy of your draft title page to send as requested (demanded, actually).

But the form also asks for (demands) a one or two-sided page synopsis to be sent in.

"Synopsis?" I hear you say, rather raggedly. "What's that?"

What is the synopsis for?

Your synopsis will tell the judges about your exhibit. It will help them to research your topic beforehand and to evaluate it at the frames. It is also your chance to brag about the significant items you are showing and why you have included them. The better your synopsis, the more likely the judges will understand your exhibit and give it the medal it deserves.

Layout

Start your synopsis with your exhibit heading, then follow it with the stamp show name and draft date. If you decide to submit an improved one later on (you have till April 1, 2014 to do so), don't forget to change the date.

Purpose and Scope

Here you restate the Purpose of your exhibit, exactly as you have written it on the title page. State the limits of your exhibit (this is the Scope), and explain why those limits are appropriate and not some arbitrary choice (e.g., that was all that would fit in the frames).

UEEF criteria as headings

Now discuss the criteria on the UEEF as they pertain to your exhibit. Here's your chance to brag about your significant items while helping the judges understand what you are showing. The criteria are, if you recall:

- Treatment and Importance
- Knowledge, Personal Study and Research
- Rarity and Condition

Don't worry about Presentation, as you will be covering it under Treatment, Purpose and Scope.

Changes

Include a short paragraph on what has changed since the exhibit's last outing, e.g., completely remounted, treatment changed, new items added.

References

These are the sources of information on your exhibit topic that will help the judges understand it. They have to read up on all of the exhibits at the show, so they may not spend more than an hour looking at your references. Aim to provide a limited number of easily accessible and preferably brief references.

Here are some more tips to maximize the amount of information they can glean:

- List no more than four references. One or two may be sufficient.
- Don't list references that are unavailable to the judges.
- List the best reference first and explain why it is so important.
- Make them specific (don't refer to "selected newsletters of a particular specialist society").
- Supply page numbers to be even more specific, if it means saving the judges time looking through a source for the relevant material.
- For highly relevant but short and/or hard to obtain material, consider emailing it as a PDF file to the Exhibits Chair, or sending photocopies with your entry form.
- Personally written articles make great references if they are relevant and cover all the questions and concerns the judges might have. You can email these as PDFs or send photocopies.
- Make sure any website links listed have been tested, and that websites don't require special access.
- Try to avoid listing publications written in another language, unless that is all that's available.

What not to include

It used to be the practice to provide a list of "significant items" in the synopsis. However, as you will cover them under your UEEF criteria you do not need a separate list.

There is also no need to make a list of prior shows in which the exhibit has been entered and the medal levels gained. Your exhibit will be judged on its own merits.

Readability

To make the synopsis more readable and visually appealing, you can format it into two columns, use a different font or color for headings, highlight important text in some way, and even add scans, pictures or maps. Don't get too carried away though!

Length

Your synopsis should not take up more than two pages. If you feel you have covered all the topics on one page, then that would be fine too.

Learn From Others

Tony Dewey has prepared an excellent synopsis for his Connecticut Tercentenary First Day Cover exhibit. It incorporates many of the suggestions made above, and is available on the AAPE exhibits webpage (scroll down to the 15th exhibit). The link is:

http://www.malariastamp.com/exhibits/exhibits\_images/DeweyConn/Synopsis.pdf

Do yourself a favor and check it out!

OK, let's do it!

Don't be intimidated by having to prepare a synopsis. Just use the headings above and tell the judges what they need to know to best judge your exhibit. Remember, you know your topic better than they do!

Acknowledgements

Thanks go to Tony Wawrukiewicz for providing feedback to an early draft of this article, and to Tony Dewey for giving permission to use the link to his synopsis.
